💡 IDEATION AD CONCEPT 💡
(The theme or overall idea of the ad)

I want to create an ad that make Amlodipine the villain with AI animation. THen downplaying it like how we downploaded Flomax and saying it doesn't actually fix the real problems -> the position our product as the solution.

🎥 Editors NOTE

Follow ad example 1 for the video we want to do. Amlodipine orange prescription bottle becomes the villain and starts talking.

Style: Match the reference. The characters are 3D animated (Pixar-style). The rooms and the body anatomy around them are realistic and cinematic. The ad is vertical 9:16.

Captions: Word-by-word, centered mid-frame. Words are white with a heavy black outline, and the word being spoken turns lime green.

Amlodipine (the villain):

- An orange prescription pill bottle with a white child-proof cap.
- An angry cartoon face: thick black eyebrows and a big toothy grin.
- Thin orange arms, black rubber gloves, black boots.
- The label reads "AMLODIPINE / 10 mg / Rx Only."
- Voice: gruff, smug male.
- In scenes with the man, he is about knee-high.

Nitro+ (the hero):

- The real Nitro+ bottle design
- Big friendly cartoon eyes and a smile on the label, plus slim red arms and legs.
- Voice: warm, confident male.

The man:

- About 65, with short gray hair, gray stubble, glasses and a slight belly.
- He must have the same face in every scene.

Ingredient characters: These are small, cute 3D characters.

- L-citrulline: a little figure made of sparkling white crystals.
- Pine bark: a chunky brown character made of bark, with a small green pine sprig on its head.
- Saffron: a purple crocus flower with bright red saffron threads for hair.

I'M AMLODIPINE I DON'T FIX

BLOOD PRESSURE

"I'm Amlodipine. 60 million prescriptions a year."
Visual: The orange Amlodipine pill bottle character stands in a dark, gritty pharmaceutical factory. Green monitor screens glow behind him and loose white pills are scattered on the wet floor. He talks straight to camera with a big evil grin and spreads his gloved hands like he's proud.

"And not one of them fixes why your blood pressure is high."
Visual: Amlodipine is inside a blood vessel. He grips the pink vessel walls on both sides with his black gloves and pulls them apart. Dark red blood drips down around his boots, and he laughs.

AMLODIPINE:
I'm Amlodipine. 60 million prescriptions a year.
And not one of them fixes why your blood pressure is high.

🪝 HOOK 2

VISUALS:

I'M YOUR BLOOD PRESSURE PILL

I'M NOT FIXING ANYTHING

"I'm Amlodipine."
Visual: Amlodipine stands in the dark pharmaceutical factory, with green monitors glowing behind him and loose white pills on the wet floor. He grins at the camera and points at himself with his thumb.

"You've taken me every morning for years."
Visual: A bright kitchen in the morning. The man sits at the table in a gray T-shirt with a glass of water and a 7-day plastic pill organizer in front of him. Amlodipine stands on the table next to the organizer, tapping it with one gloved finger and smirking at the man.

"And your numbers still aren't where your doctor wants them."
Visual: Same kitchen. The man has a home blood pressure cuff on his upper arm and stares at the monitor, frowning. The screen shows a high reading in red: 148/92. Amlodipine leans on the monitor with his elbow, laughing.

AMLODIPINE:
I'm Amlodipine. You've taken me every morning for years. And your numbers still aren't where your doctor wants them

YOUR SWOLLEN ANKLES

ARE MY FAULT

"I'm Amlodipine."
Visual: Amlodipine stands in the dark pharmaceutical factory, with green monitors glowing behind him and loose white pills on the wet floor. He grins at the camera and points at himself with his thumb.

"Those swollen ankles you've been blaming on getting older?"
Visual: A cozy living room. The man sits in a beige armchair in a gray T-shirt and jeans rolled up to mid-shin, barefoot. He leans forward, looking down at his left ankle, which is visibly puffy, with a deep red dent where his sock was.

"That's me."
Visual: Same shot. Amlodipine pops up from behind the man's swollen ankle with small flames coming off his body. He points his thumb at himself, grinning.

AMLODIPINE:
I'm Amlodipine. Those swollen ankles you've been blaming on getting older?
That's me

VISUALS:

"Want to know what I actually do to you?"
Visual: Inside a narrow artery with lumpy yellow fat deposits stuck to the walls. Amlodipine stands in the middle, leans toward the camera and smirks.

"Stick around."
Visual: Same shot. Amlodipine waves the camera toward him with one finger.

"Your swollen ankles?"
Visual: The living room. The man sits in a beige armchair, barefoot, with his left ankle visibly puffy and swollen. Amlodipine stands next to the swollen foot with small flames coming off his body, pointing at the ankle and laughing.

"That's not aging."
Visual: A wider shot of the living room, with bookshelves and a lamp. The man now sits in a plaid armchair looking worried. Amlodipine stands on the floor beside the chair, shaking his head at the camera.

"I can force your blood vessels open so wide that fluid leaks out…"
Visual: Inside a large blood vessel. Amlodipine grabs a cracked, torn section of the vessel wall with both hands and rips it wider. White cloudy fluid seeps out through the cracks like smoke.

"…and pools in your ankles."
Visual: Close-up of the man's bare feet resting on a navy blue blanket on his bed. His left ankle is swollen and shiny. Amlodipine leans his whole body against the swollen ankle like he's leaning on a wall.

"And it's got nowhere to drain."
Visual: Same shot. Amlodipine pokes the swollen ankle with one gloved finger. The skin dents in and stays dented.

"Congratulations."
Visual: Back in the dark pharmaceutical factory. Amlodipine is now fully on fire, flames all around his body, with a huge sarcastic grin. He slowly claps his gloved hands.

AMLODIPINE:
Want to know what I actually do to you?
Stick around.
Your swollen ankles?
That's not aging.
I can force your blood vessels open so wide that fluid leaks out…
…and pools in your ankles.
And it's got nowhere to drain.
Congratulations.

"Hi, I'm Nitro Plus 3-in-1."
Visual: The red Nitro+ bottle character walks toward the camera through a tunnel-shaped blood vessel glowing warm gold. She smiles and waves.

"And I actually fix the reason your blood pressure is high."
Visual: Same golden tunnel, with red blood cells flowing smoothly past the Nitro+ bottle. The tunnel walls gently widen and relax on their own around her. Nothing is touching them.

"But be careful."
Visual: The Nitro+ bottle stands inside a blood vessel glowing orange, with red blood cells floating around her. She raises one hand like a warning and makes a serious face.

"Most nitric oxide pills you see on Amazon are beetroot powder."
Visual: Over the man's shoulder in his living room. He sits on the couch in a blue sweater, scrolling Amazon on his phone. The screen shows rows of generic beetroot capsule bottles with plain purple labels, no brand names and no real logos.

"Each capsule holds a sliver of the dose that was actually studied."
Visual: Close-up of the phone screen. His thumb taps one beetroot product, and the photo zooms in on a single small purple capsule.

NITRO+:

VISUALS:

You need L-citrulline. The raw material your body actually turns into nitric oxide."
Visual: A glowing swirl of sparkling white crystal powder with golden light rays shining through it, like the sea moss shot in the reference. The crystals fly toward the camera and burst into bright blue sparks. On-screen text appears: "L-CITRULLINE," then "NITRIC OXIDE."

"Plus the right supporting ingredients."
Visual: Inside a blood vessel with red blood cells floating around. Three ingredient characters stand side by side and join hands: the white crystal L-citrulline figure, the brown pine bark character and the purple saffron flower. A glowing gold ring forms around the three of them.

"Pine bark to help your vessels make their own nitric oxide again. Not the way he's been forcing them."
Visual: Inside a blood vessel. The brown pine bark character presses both palms against the pink vessel wall. Blue glowing light spreads from its hands, and the wall smoothly widens on its own. Behind it, slightly blurred, is a torn and cracked section of wall, the damage Amlodipine did earlier.

"Pine bark also protects it, so it lasts long enough to reach your hands and feet."

"Saffron for the mood and the drive he never touched."
Visual: A sunny kitchen in the morning. The man stands at the counter, smiling big, sleeves rolled up, looking full of energy. The purple saffron flower character sits on the counter, swirling gold ribbons of light around his head and chest.

"All 3 working on the system your blood pressure actually depends on."
Visual: A realistic see-through 3D view of a man's body showing the heart and main arteries, like the kidney anatomy shot in the reference. A bright blue glow pulses from the heart out through the arteries all the way to the hands and feet.

"3 ingredients. Every dose on the label. 2 capsules a day."
Visual: Warm gold blurry background. White crystal powder, curls of brown pine bark and red saffron threads float in a circle. They spin faster, collapse into a bright flash of light, and 2 capsules appear floating in the center.

"Made in the USA. Third-party tested."
Visual: The red Nitro+ bottle character stands in front of a clean cream-colored backdrop with soft red light behind her. She gives a thumbs up.

"90-day money-back guarantee."
Visual: Same backdrop. The Nitro+ bottle puts her hands on her hips and nods confidently.

"If you don't feel the difference, every penny back."
Visual: Same backdrop. On "If you don't," she gives a slow, knowing look. On "every penny back," she breaks into a big smile.

"No prescription needed."
Visual: Same backdrop. The Nitro+ bottle waves at the camera.

"Don't listen to her. Stay with me."
Visual: Inside a blood vessel with red blood cells floating past. Amlodipine now looks beaten:

- He slumps on the floor with his white cap cracked.
- His label is ripped so it only reads "AMLO…".
- A hospital IV drip pole stands next to him.

He reaches one shaky gloved hand toward the camera, begging, his voice weak.

"Your ankles were going to swell anyway."
Visual: Same shot. Amlodipine gives a weak, desperate shrug and looks away.

"Tap the link below. Get him out of your life."
Visual: The red Nitro+ bottle character stands in front of a glowing golden sunburst background with her arms open wide, smiling at the camera. Small text at the bottom of the screen: "Never stop or change a prescription without talking to your doctor."

AMLODIPINE:
Don't listen to her. Stay with me.
Your ankles were going to swell anyway.
